Filey Wins Beach Of The Year

Filey has won The Sunday Times' Beach of the Year.

From a surfer's paradise in Cornwall to secluded sands in Scotland, The Sunday Times has compiled the definitive list of Britain's best beaches for 2018.

Chris Haslam, the paper's chief travel writer, has chosen the 50 best beaches out of the hundreds he's inspected around our coast, reporting back on the water quality, the activities on offer, the quality of food available and the magic in their sands.

The guide gives readers a description of the scenery and setting, as well as all the practical information needed to plan a beach day, including car parking, toilets, refreshments, shops and accommodation.

The winner of Beach of the Year goes to Filey, North Yorkshire, described as casting a spell that "turns you into a kid again". This is something that we all should be very proud of so "Thank You" to all those involved in this great achievement.

Filey's Missing Sundial

At the junction of Station Road and Station Avenue is the Rose Garden. In the centre of its walkways is a decorative street lamp. On a wall nearby is a plaque that shows that in the past a Sundial was located where the lamp is now. The plaque reads "This Sun Dial was erected by the Urban District Council of Filey in recognition of services rendered by D C Hudson JP, Chairman of the Council 1961.

No trace or information can be found as to what happened to it but as standing in the garden it becomes obvious when seeing the shadow cast by the lamp post that this position could be used as the gnomon for a new Sun Dial. Friends of Filey Parks took on the project, permissions were received from the Councils and a grant was gratefully received From Filey Lions Club. The project is well and truly underway and the Sun dial is currently being produced by Scaife Fabrications. It is hoped to be installed later in the summer.
